

Beer Menu

Lager (Pilsener, etc)

A lager is a type of beer that is recognized by its high carbonation level and light color, though some modern lager beers are darker in color and may even be black. In order to aid in the brewing process, the brewers created a type of yeast that was cable of helping cold beer mature properly. This yeast is still used today to make lager beer and is referred to as bottom-fermenting yeast. Pilsner is one of the most popular styles of lager beers in Germany, and in many other countries. Classic German Pilsners are very light straw to golden in color. Head should be dense and rich.

Hofbrau Munchen Original Lager, Germany	$5.00
Weihenstephaner Original Lager, Germany	$5.50
Paulaner Premium Pils, Germany	$5.00
Trumer Pils, Berkeley CA	$4.00

Wheat Ale (Hefe-Weizen, Dunkel-Weizen, Weizenbock, Doppelseck, etc)

Wheat Ale, a south German style of wheat beer made with a typical ratio of 50:50, or even higher, wheat. A yeast that produces a unique phenolic flavors of banana and cloves with an often dry and tart edge, some spiciness, bubblegum or notes of apples. Little hop bitterness, and a moderate level of alcohol. Often served with a lemon wedge (popularized by Americans), to either cut the wheat or yeast edge, which many either find to be a flavorful snap ... or an insult and something that damages the beer's taste and head retention.

Weihenstephaner Hefe-Weizen, Germany	$6.50
Hofbrau Dunkel-Weizen, Germany	$5.50
Erdinger Dunkel-Weizen, Germany (500ml)	$9.50
Weihenstephaner Dunkel-Weizen, Germany (500ml)	$9.50
Schneider Aventinus Weizenbock, Germany (500ml)	$9.50
Weihenstephaner Korbinian Doppelseck, Germany (500ml)	$9.50

Unusual/Seasonal Beer

Something unusual and unique. Not your everyday beers.

Aecht Schlenkerla Rauchbier Maerzen, Germany (500ml) - a Smoked Beer can be quiet a robust, even an overpowering beer, more so with versions that use peat smoked malt which carries a cloying smoked flavor that can be much stronger and more assertive .	$14.50
Belhaven Wee Heavy Ale, UK (500ml) - "Wee Heavy" belong to the Scotch Ales family. Compare to the Scotch Ale its sweeter and fuller-bodied, and of course higher in alcohol, with a much more pronounced malty caramel and roasted malt flavor. A low tea-like bitterness can be found in many examples.	$12.50
Duchesse De Bourgogne, Verhaeghe, Belgium - Belgian Red Beers are typically light-bodied brews with reddish-brown colors. They are infamous for their distinct sharp, fruity, sour and tart flavors which are created by special yeast strains.	$10.50
NEW Fuller Vintage Ale - Old Ales, also referred to in the past as "Stock" Ales, are low attenuated beers with high levels of dextrans, creating a full malt body with plenty of character. Old Ales of a hundred plus years ago were often transfered into vats to mature, hence the name. Fuller's Vintage Ale is brewed in limited batches with each bottle being numbered. It can be enjoyed immediately, or Fuller's recommends laying the beer down to enjoy when it peaks in 3 to 4 years and consume at cellar temperature.	$15.00
Rouge Brutal Bitter, OR, 22oz - ESBs are essentially more aggressive and more balanced Bitters, both in alcohol and hop character, but nothing overpowering. And despite "bitter" being in its name, ESBs are not really all that bitter. The key to an ESB is balance.	$12.99